PROFESSOR SIMONE GRANDINI

DDS, MSc, PhD

Editor

Professor Simone Grandini graduated from the Dental School of Florence University. He obtained postgraduate certificates in Periodontology (University of Genoa), Restorative Dentistry (University of Florence), and a PhD (University of Siena). Prof. Grandini has published more than 300 papers in national and international journals, and over the last 20 years has given more than 700 lectures on Endodontics and Restorative Dentistry in Europe, the Americas, Asia, Africa and Australasia.

*Chair of Endodontics and Restorative Dentistry
Head, Department of Endodontics & Restorative Dentistry
Dean of the School of Dental Hygienists
University of Siena, Italy*

Since 1999, the fundamental goal of International Dentistry South Africa/ African Edition has been to publish original clinical and scientific material and so have a wider appeal to clinicians. The reader profile includes general dental practitioners, specialists and academics.

Not only do readers have access to clinical papers, but also to significant scientific information, keeping them informed of current developments in all aspects of dentistry.

The journal is published in two continents, Africa and Australasia, with the launch of the Australasian Edition in 2006.

The journals attract submissions by authors globally. The standard of the clinical and scientific content is consistent throughout both publications, with each published article subject to peer-review.
